

Winter 2010/11 Share Projection

This is our working projection for the winter share and what we base our plantings on. The weeks are listed across the top and crops are listed to the left. We've made an estimate of the value of each item and there is a number in the box that corresponds to the week we hope to give out the item and the number of "units" of that item we plan to give that week. The actual winter share will depend on weather, and how well each planting works, as well as when things actually mature, not when we want them to mature. For the winter shares we will move to an every other week harvest schedule, as all of the crops hold well in storage. This should at least give an idea of what types of vegetables we're growing, and roughly the size of a share each week.

Winter, like spring, is a bit of a gamblers season but the roots and some of the greens are more consistent in our climate, withstanding freezes well and storing well in the ground until they start to regrow as the weather warms in late February and March. Crops are not harvestable if they are frozen, and the weeks off may be switched in the event of a freeze. We'll take the first two weeks off as a holiday break.
